ery.—A friend said to me to-day, have you seen those beautiful initations of marble, and the large slab of splendid slate stone, "from the quarry of the American Martel and Slate Company, now on exhibition at Messra. Wasburn & Vanderhoof's office, in William street. New York? No, I replied; then go and see them. Always admiring the beauties of nature and art, I stroight leisurely there. Upon a thorough examination, I thought to myself, old like never yet has missed fire. The slate is most beautiful, and the rootling slate under the table was, of course looked at and examined; it compares with the Welst, which I saw dog out from the immense quarries in Wales, giving employment to nearly lifteen hundred men; but they have not in all Europe, such boautiful initiations of the various marbles as this company produces. On inquiry, I learned this company's quarry was in tehigh county, Pennsylvania; that the bed was inexhaustible. A company has been formed with a capital of $200,000. Factories, there and in Brooklyn, machinery for saving, planeing, rubbing and carving, are all in full operation, employing between thirty and corty men. The demand for mantels, table tops, and rooting slate, was more than they can supply, and another set of men would be necessary to fill their orders. The initiations cannot be surpassed—the slate being so pure and fee of knots or nodules, gives it a decided preference over any slate I have yet seen in America. The slate stone is ten times stronger than marble, besides neither oils or actis have any effect on the enamelling—apparently the whole material, whatever it may be, is so lightly laid on, that it has the appearance of the real Simon Fure. The cheapters of the article produced, will, in a very great measure, supplant marble; in fact, some of the mrare ca

CLA BATHING.—CAPE ISLAND—McMAKIN'S NEW Atlantic Hotel, Cape Island, Cape May, N. J.—Not to have visited Cape Island now-days, during the Bathing Season, is not to have seealthe world. No one should fail to do so, if but for a week, or even a day. The facilities of approach are so great, the means so elegant, safe cheap and speedy, that no one can hesitate for a moment to make the delightful, popular and fashionable excursion. This admittled, and the visit resolved upon, the next consideration is to secure the most favorable location to enjoy, to the full, the glorious occan seenery, the medicinal benefit of the briny airs, as they roll up from the heaving billow, and an all important proximity to that daily seene of health, wonder and excitement—the tumbling and foaming surf! Here let us advise the stranger—the annual visiter will not need our hint)—to remember the incomparable—nay, entirely unrivalled location of the above hotsl, situate almost upon the very beach at the extremity of the island, and of the State. From New York visitors may reach the Cape by the superb sea steamers Sanford and Delaware, or by rail to Philadelphia, and thence, daily, in the splendid steamers Thomas Fowell and General MeDonald.
